Safety management in aviation is continually evolving and keeping up with the latest thinking is a challenge that faces all safety professionals. Our flagship Safety Management course reflects the latest thinking in SMS and shares the practical experience Baines Simmons has built up through successfully engaging on numerous safety management projects with clients worldwide.

How will this course benefit me?

This three-day course reflects the new regulatory emphasis on managing safety at an organisational level. It is focused on developing and running a successful Safety Management System (SMS) as an essential and invaluable business tool.

Completing this course will:

- Improve your ability to engage with your Board to promote your safety message
- Improve your ability to satisfy the Regulator that you are compliant
- Increase your understanding of what is needed to elevate your SMS so that it reflects new best practice and achieves levels of excellence
- Improve your efficiency through enhanced use of existing safety systems, data and personnel
- Increase your ability to assess your SMS objectively and be able to make risk-based decisions as a result

Is this course right for me?

This is a hands-on course aimed at aviation safety practitioners charged with delivering the organisation's Safety Management System. It is ideally suited to:

- Safety Managers
- Anyone involved in operating a Safety Office

This course would also benefit:
